Important: Fire Safety Information
When rigid vinyl siding is exposed to significant heat or flame, the vinyl will soften, sag, melt or burn, and may thereby expose material underneath. Care must be exercised when selecting underlayment materials because many underlayment materials are made from organic materials that are combustible. You should ascertain the fire properties of underlayment materials prior to installation. All building materials should be installed in accordance with building codes having jurisdiction, and fire regulations.

Dura™ Color
Innovative Dura™ Color Protection formulation delivers superior color retention through the most advanced color technology available.

Shear Test
Shears and siding are frozen to 14°F (-10°C). Siding is then cut into sections to ensure your vinyl siding maintains its rigidity under severe weather conditions.

Flex Test
Siding is bent almost 180° at 32°F (0°C) to ensure it maintains its structural integrity and superior durability under the harshest weather conditions.

Impact Test
An impact test is performed at 73°F (23°C) and again at 32°F (0°C) to simulate harsh weather conditions, ensuring your vinyl siding exceeds ASTM standards.
